A STRICKEN PEOPLE.

MEMPHIS PEOPLE FLEEING FOR THEIR LIVES.

The Fever Assumes an Epidemic Form-People Fleeing by the Thousands from the Scourge.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—A telegram from Dr. Mitchell at Memphis received at the National Board of Health last night declares the city to be dangerously infected. Another dispatch was received at noon to-day reports six new cases and the disease spreading.

MEMPHIS, July 19.—Three new cases of yellow fever were reported to the Board of Health this morning, Louisa T., and Viola Godsey, two sisters residing at 48 Bradford street, and Tom Kernan, a passenger agent of the Memphis & Charleston R. R. The illness of Godsey and his sisters can be traced to infection from the Tober family. The young ladies were in attendance on Mrs. Tobin until her case was pronounced yellow fever. These cases dispel the sporadic theory. Hiram Athy, son of Chief of Police Athy is dying, although his case has not yet been reported to the Board of Health as yellow fever. The chief's residence is in the neighborhood of Tobin's dwelling as is also Tom Kenan's. The report of the death of Fred Eckers was premature. He is living but lies in an extremely critical condition. The weather is warm and sultry with occasional showers. The development of new cases has given fresh impetus to the exodus of citizens.

Another Distressing Accident on the Water.

NEW YORK, July 19.—A Quebec special dispatch says a yacht containing fifteen people capsized at Point Aux Trembleux during a squall yesterday, and eight of the party were drowned. Their names are Mrs. Octave deLisle, wife of the owner of the yacht; Miss Emile Larue, a wealthy young lady and daughter of the seigneur of Point Aux Trembles; Louis Lefebord, principal of an academy at Point Aux Trembles, who leaves a widow and four children and his son who is a lad of fourteen years; Louis Garneau, Xavier Garneau, Ferdinand Blais, sailing master of the yacht; Dr. Ernest deLisle, village physician, who leaves a wife and two children. The body of Lefebone was recovered while floating on the water. All the other bodies have gone to the bottom and may be washed out to sea. The yacht turned completely over. A steamer and several small boats went to the rescue, but could only save seven of the fifteen, who were put on board.

Haytien Affairs.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Hon. Stephen Preston, Minister of Hayti to this country, received a cable dispatch from Port au Prince, as late as the 15th instant, informing him of the condition of the political affairs in the Haytien republic. Quiet had already been restored at Port au Prince, but at the cost of a considerable number of lives on both sides. The fighting in that city lasted five days and was carried on in the streets and from house to house. The fire that broke out destroyed seventy houses, but the commercial portion of the city was not injured. Among the killed was the minister of war, Francais, and the ex-minister of war, Montas, Colonel August Bazelais, of the militia, Judge George Bazelais, of the Supreme Court, B. Bazelais, E. Paul, H. Price and other prominent politicians. Three members from Port au Prince took refuge at the Foreign Consulate's. On the north side of the Republic fighting was still going on between the towns of Gonaives and St. Marie.

The Fire Record.

MACON, Ga., July 19.—A fire here yesterday morning destroyed the establishments of Henry Schall, dealer in shoes; Hunt, Rankin & Lamar, wholesale dealers in drugs, and C. H. Rogers & Co., wholesale grocers. The losses are, Schall, $5,000, insured; Hunt, Rankin & Lamar, $45,000, insured for $28,000; Rogers & Co, $40,000, insured for $30,000. All have resumed business. The fire was the work of an incendiary.

Condensed Telegrams.

Bass, a lumber dealer at Reading, has failed for $150,000.

Steamship explosion at Albany last night. No lives lost.

Buford's lawyers addressed the jury yesterday. The impression prevails that he will be acquitted.

The Treasury Department has revoked the order prohibiting the importation of meat cattle from England, but will be subjected to municipal quarantine regulations.

The National Board of Health decides that it cannot aid in quarantining Galveston because Texas has not accepted the rules adopted by the Board.

The French Senate, by 153 to 116, voted yesterday to go to Paris.

California Democrats agree to retain Dr. Glenn as nominee for Governor.

The print cloth market report of Philadelphia shows the production this week to be 20 per cent. larger than last week, which shows that manufacturers are making a steady gain in procuring spinners.

Writ of Error in Cox's Case.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Judge Noah Davis this morning granted a writ of error in the case of Chastine Cox, convicted of the murder of Mrs. Hull, which was taken before Judge Potter, who thereupon granted a stay of proceedings in the case.

WASHINGTON.

Toothsome Truffles for Sunday Morning Breakfast.

THE OHIO CAMPAIGN.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—It is given out officially that the Democrats in Ohio will begin their campaign next week. On the 24th inst. General Ewing is to be given a public reception at his home in Lancaster, when he will make a speech which will be the keynote for all citizens of Ohio, "who," as the General says himself, "stand on the broad platform of Democracy." Congressman Cox, of New York, is booked for a number of speeches in Ewing's favor, and such eminent greenbackers as Congressmen Lowe, of Alabama, and Henry Carey Baird, of Pennsylvania, are to take the stump in the same cause.

SECOND LIEUTENANTCIES.

The list of names of the candidates for appointment to the thirty-seven vacancies in the position of second lieutenant in the army, as made up by the Secretary of War, has been revised by the President, and the appointments will be made probably next week. In the revision the South, it is said, is cut down to only three appointments. Among those selected are sons of Generals Fremont, Rucker, Perry, Hatch and Ord. There were 1,200 applications.

THE WAR PORTFOLIO.

From information obtained at the Executive Mansion, to-day, there is no doubt of the correctness of the statement heretofore published in regard to the successor of Secretary McCrary. Ex-Senator Ramsey, of Minnesota, has been tendered the office of Secretary of War, and has accepted. The change will not occur, however, until the present Secretary retires from his present position to till the office made vacant by the resignation of Judge Dillon, of the eighth United States judicial circuit.

THE PRESIDENT, ETC.

The President will remain here until the 1st of September, when he will go to his home in Ohio for a month. He is in daily receipt of invitations to visit centennial celebrations, fairs and cattle shows, but he has decided to refuse all.

YELLOW FEVER.

Representative Casey Young, of the Memphis (Tenn.) district, is in the city. He says that he has very serious apprehensions that the yellow fever will strike the entire Mississippi valley in epidemic form. He thinks the existing cases have been contracted from the germs of last summer's visitation, and that unless the most absolute precautions are taken that the sad scenes of last year will again be visited upon the unhappy South.

MR. DAVIS' LEGACY.

Mrs. Dorsey was born at Woodlawn, February 17, 1829, and not in Natchez, the city residence of her parents. She was the eldest of four children, two only of whom are now alive, S. Percy and his sister Inez. Their brother, Thomas LaRoche, died while a soldier in the Confederate service. In 1851 Sarah married a son of Justin Dorsey, of Maryland. This gentleman died in 1875. His widow then took up her residence at Beauvoir, on the gulf, a few miles from Mississippi City. For two years the ex-President of the Confederacy had been a guest at this place. The property conveyed to Davis, it is estimated, is worth a quarter million. It is stated that Mrs. Dorsey's will will be contested, and steps have already been taken toward that end.

CROP REPORTS.

Oats—The returns to the Department of Agriculture for July 1st show a depression in the prospects of the oat crop. While the acreage in June shows a decrease of four per cent., the condition of the crop is still lower. The New England States have fair prospects, but the drought has been very detrimental in the Middle and Southern States. In the West only the most Northern States Minnesota and Wisconsin, report favorably.

Potatoes—The acreage is three per cent. more than 1878 for the whole country. All report a decrease in area planted. In the West, Michigan reports an increase of 7 per cent, Illinois 4, Iowa 5 and Missouri 5. The condition of the crop was more favorable than at the same time in 1878.

Fruits—The condition of the fruit crop for the whole country is bad. In the east and north Atlantic States the crop both for apples and peaches is good, but from North Carolina to Texas the peach crop is almost a total failure, and the apple crop very short, caused by frost in April. In the large fruit regions bordering on the Ohio river the failure of peaches is quite universal, but the apple crop will almost be half a crop. In Michigan both peaches and apples are reported good, and in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa the apple crop is at an average. California has a full crop of peaches.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

The judge of the United States court at St. Louis has rendered a decision under the act prescribing a new method of drawing jurors for United States courts which forms a precedent and cannot but be affirmed by other judges should the question be brought to their attention. The decision is that U. S. marshals have nothing whatever to do with the drawing of juries except to execute the instructions of the clerk of the court and the person of opposite political faith, who are to furnish the names of talesmen from which the juries are to be drawn. This decision will remove marshals from all responsibility, and would it seems, prevent the selection of "packed juries."

THE IMPERIAL SUCCESSION.

A Visit to the Next Napoleonic Emperor of the French in Case the Republic Does Not Succeed.

PARIS, July 18.—A delegation of Bonapartists from Marseilles, Lyons and other cities of Southern France, to-day waited on Prince Jerome Napoleon and were received by him in the large saloon of his residence. They presented him with an address, accepting him as the legal head of the Bonapartist family and as the rightful leader of the Imperial party. In reply the Prince read an address, which had evidently been carefully studied and prepared. He declared himself to be the head of the Bonapartist family and dynasty. This, he said, was by no act of his own. It was simply the result of the rules of succession, established by Napoleon I, and now brought to bear in his own case by the death of the late Prince Imperial in South Africa. As head of the family and of the dynasty, he would know how to fulfill his duties, and he trusted that in the end the verdict of posterity would be that he had discharged them well and faithfully. But, he continued, he must be allowed to choose his own time in all his actions, and to await the course of events. The republic was at present by right the legal government of the country, and so long as its administrators preserved the confidence of the people by peaceable and legal means, it was the duty of Frenchmen to support it. "As the chief of the Bonapartist family I emphatically oppose and discountenance every intrigue which may be set on foot for the purpose of placing the Bonapartists in a position inconsistent with their origin, their duties and their causes." The address was received with many expressions of approbation by the delegation. After the formal interchange of sentiment, the Prince entertained the delegates for some time, and conversed with them informally upon the present and future prospects of the party. It is understood that the party of the Prince has received, within the last few days, several ladies of rank and position, who heretofore have been ardent partisans of the immediate restoration of the empire.

Manufacturing at Hickory.

Piedmont Press.

Other factories will be in operation soon. Messrs. J. G. Hall, of the firm of Hall Brothers, and J. H. Daniels, a member of a prominent hardware firm in Baltimore, have formed a copartnership and will soon be ready to begin work. They are to build a large factory during the coming winter and will conduct the business on a large scale. In addition to this Dr. B. F. Cobb and son, Mr. C. B. M. Cobb, of Wilmington, have located here and will engage in the manufacture of tobacco. So it will be seen that the manufacturing interests of this place are on the increase

The Reason Why.

Washington Post.

It is the boast of Mr. Sherman that the credit of the United States "stands as high as that of any nation in the world." Mr. Sherman should add that the National credit did not reach such an altitude till the Radical party had its grip loosened, and the Democracy were marching into power.

TAR HEEL NEGROES

On their way to the Promised Land---They Interview Fred Douglas to the tune of Five Dollars.

Washington Post, 19th.

The first batch of colored emigrants which has left North Carolina for Kansas, passed through this city yesterday. The party consisted of Lovelys Brown, Turner Scott, Doc Brown, Miles Scott and Wm. Scott. Brown is a Baptist minister, and hails from Halifax county, while the rest are from the adjoining county of Warren, and are farm hands. The Browns are both jet black, while the Scotts are light mulattoes. The former are not relations, but the two last named are boys of sixteen and eighteen, sons of Turner Scott. Their first act on arriving here was to make for the City Hall, where they expected they would find "Mr. Fred Douglass." On hearing their story he gave them five dollars and sent them to see the Kansas Immigration Aid Committee, lately formed here. Mr. Douglass has placed himself on record over and over again as opposed to the movement, but said he could not see members of his race go hungry and destitute.

The tale they told him was, that becoming dissatisfied with the life they were leading in North Carolina, they and their friends had decided that they should push along till they got to Kansas, do the best they could for themselves there and write home the state of affairs. This last was especially delegated to the minister, whose congregations (he has three) paid his expenses. A colored man named West Harris, had advised them to call at this city on their way. They left home on Tuesday last, taking the turnpike at first and intending to walk to Portsmouth, Va., and so husband their small fund. By Wednesday at noon one or two of the party were completely used up, and the rest were very willing to take the cars, though the fare took all their money. Mr. Milton M. Holland, the treasurer of the relief committee here, conferred with Mr. Douglass and the travelers, and it was decided that the route should be changed, and at Athens, Ohio, made the objective point. Tickets for that place were procured and given to them, and they left on the eleven o'clock train last night. A letter asking aid in placing the working portion of the party was sent to Hon. Nelson H. Van Vorhees, ex-member of Congress, living there. A Post representative was at the depot to bid them bon voyage. While the men appeared to belong to the better class of plantation hands, their dense ignorance prevented much information being mined out of them. No grievance appeared to have been the working agent in their trip, though one kept repeating that their "sufferance" was all they wanted. In reply to the direct and well-understood question as to whether they had ever experienced or heard of any interference with the right of voting, they all replied that they had not. The question was put as to the method used by the Democrats to get their votes. The charge that men of their minds against their friends, the Republicans, was all that they knew or would say against the former party. The lack of money, and the payment for labor by store orders was referred to as something that would be different in the "promised land," but no especial hardship appeared to be suffered by the state of things they said existed; no one had any money down there, one said. They did not know the names of the candidates in the last congressional election, nor their present representative. The minister was dressed in a fine broadcloth suit, and the others in somewhat worn but substantial clothes and shoes. All had bundles or bags which they carried over their shoulders, or by their side.

Paper is worth six cents a pound in Peru until it is made into money. Then it depreciates about 50 per cent.—Boston Post.

THROUGH RALEIGH.

A TOUR THROUGH THE STREETS AND HIGHWAYS.

An Old Roadway Renovated---The Number of Bridges Erected---A Review of the City.

Strangers visiting the city might infer that the authorities were not wide awake in the matter of improvements, and by the way, the common conversation would give them that impression.

How many of our citizens are aware of the amount of work done on our streets? They travel along day after day, ever ready to condemn the inefficiency of the Street Commissioner and the city authorities. Let us look at the amount of work done with the means furnished.

Before the war almost all our visible property was vested in land with slaves to work it. Therein consisted our wealth. We had no manufacturing interests in our section. Our products were virtually exports—

To enrich another section while we laid supinely, and our proceeds arose from our staples.

Since the war another seon has commenced. More energy has been displayed—Raleigh, in fact is becoming a city outside the charter.

To furnish the readers of the NEWS with a slight idea of the improvements going on throughout the city, a representative of the NEWS traveled over the city streets in company with the Street Commissioner, William N. Andrews, Esq., an old and well-known citizen. The work was well done, and should command the attention of tax-payers.

It might be well to institute a comparison of Raleigh with some Northern cities.

From time to time allusion has been made to certain Northern cities, notably Rahway and Elizabeth City, and these cities have been cited in evidence of the folly of carrying on improvements to the detriment of property-holders and tax-payers. At the present time Rahway, N. J., is a city of some 7,000 inhabitants, Elizabeth comprises with the old and the new town about 25,000. Just after the war the city authorities of those places "went in" for improvements. They made them. And at what cost? The rate of taxation at the present day is 33⅓ per cent. The NEWS in this article has not room to explain it. What is necessary now, is not so much a word of caution, although "this word" "caution" may be well studied, as a word of explanation.

Those cities went in too deep..

They over-taxed the strength of the property assessed.

This is the thing to be avoided. And this is apparently what our "city fathers" are doing. The amount allowed to the Street Commissioner for the present year amounts to about $9,000. Captain Andrews has about fifty-five miles of streets under his supervision. He has twenty-five men in his employ—less than half a man a mile.

Let any of our citizens walk this distance through a burning sun and see the distance they cover and state their experience at the close of their journey and then complain of the state of affairs.

The new culverts erected (and this is from the 1st of June to the present time) are six: a new culvert at the corner of Salisbury and Hargett streets; a culvert at the crossing of Fayetteville and Hargett streets; a culvert and cross-walk at Fayetteville and Martin streets; also at Fayetteville and Davie streets; at the intersection of Martin and East streets, two. This helps to constitute a portion of the system of drainage, alluded to in a former article.

THE HOLLEMAN ROAD.

Smith street, as laid down on the city maps, has from time immemorial been classed as the worst roadway within the city limits. There were ruts that would almost swallow up an ox team. Mr. Andrews carted in hundreds of loads of refuse from the brick yards, and now the road makes quite a presentable appearance. A system of drainage has been instituted that promises well, and 'Squire Holleman sits there and watches the advantages to be gained from this improvement to his property.

Stone has also been conveyed near the depot for the building of culverts at that point.

Subjoined is a list of foot bridges constructed since the 1st day of July:

REPORT OF BRIDGES

put down from the 1st day of July up to July 19th:

1 foot bridge on corner Davie and Blunt streets.
1 foot bridge on corner Martin and Person streets.
2 foot bridges on corner Martin and Blunt streets.
1 foot bridge on corner Harget and Dawson streets.

In addition to the above enumerated is a bridge on Edenton street, 40x6 feet. Another on Johnston street 17x6. Two on the corner of Hargett and Blount streets 48x6 feet each, and another at the corner of McDowell and Morgan streets, 32x6 feet. The total of foot bridges put down, 6x8 feet, amounts to fifty-four. This work has been accomplished since the 1st day of July.

And another thing. There are sanitary officers in the city. No person whatsoever has any right to throw night-soil in the streets, expecting that the Commissioner of Streets is supposed to remove the filth. This is simply an impossibility in the nature of of things. The Commissioner is not a sanitary officer by detail. His duty is with the roadways and not with exclusive sanitary regulations.

The truth is there has been a large amount of work done on the streets for which the authorities get no credit, and nothing but an actual survey will give our citizens any idea of the labor performed.

It is the object of the authorities, with the present means at their command to perform the most work at the lowest possible cost to the city. In fact, that projected improvements shall go as far as means will allow, not to stand in the light of temporary improvements, but the work shall be done in a solid manner, to be enlarged from time to time as appropriations are made.

This subject is not by any means complete, and Tuesday morning's NEWS will contain a continuation of this article.

A Bootblack Millionaire.

Dubuque Telegraph.

He was a wonderful genius who discovered that "Truth is stranger than fiction." It is sometimes nowadays stranger than forty fictions. Hear us: About two years ago there came hither from New York a soil-stained, weather-beaten boy about fourteen years of age, small for his years and evidently pinched in growth by suffering privations too common even in this country to those who fall upon the charity of the world at tender years. When a comparative infant his parents died in quick succession, and he was left, as many a poor child is, to fight his way through life. How he fared at first is perhaps mercifully blotted from his memory; but in the light of his past few years' experience the portion of sunshine that brightened his pathway must have been small. For four or five years he sought to make a living by shining boots on the streets of the miniature world in which his lot was cast, and among whose surging multitudes and busy throngs of eager money-seekers he was of as little consequence as the insect that was crushed upon the sidewalk. An odd nickel fell to his share from the millions of dollars that daily change hands, adding to the swollen wealth of some and aggravating the poverty of others. On bread purchased with these nickels he existed from day to day. Having reason to believe that he had relations living in the neighborhood of Dubuque, he resolved to try to make his way hither, which he finally succeeded in doing through the kindness of some of the railroad conductors who helped him along. His search for his relatives in this city was something like Japhet's search for his father, and the little fellow had to fall back on his blacking-brush as his pillar of support among strangers. There was something about him well calculated to enlist sympathy in his behalf; but sympathy will not buy bread nor clothing in great abundance, and the little fellow felt that he needed something more substantial. His stay here was not long. He wandered aimlessly, almost, further west, until he reached the wonderful young giant of the plains—Denver City—where he tarried for awhile until the silver excitement gathered him up and bore him on with the resistless thousands to the carbonate-ribbed mountains of South Colorado. He carried his time tried brush with him, and strange as it may appear, found it a more reliable aid among the adventurers of the mountains than among the polished denizens who treat the Portland-cement walks of eastern cities. From his earnings as knight of the brush—a pioneer in his line among pioneers—he "grubbed" an honest prospector who went into the mountains with his virgin pick to try his luck on shares. Fortune, which had turned her back on the poor bootblack so long, smiled on his partner, and before six suns had set he had struck a vein of galena which even at the surface promised a big yield of silver. Further developments have proven it to be one of the most promising mines in the neighborhood of Leadville, and the boy bootblack is counted a millionaire. But they say he isn't proud. His name is McGuire.

JONAH'S TOMB.

Discoveries Among the Mounds of Nineveh the Tower of Babel.

Manchester Guardian Letter.

Mr. Hormuzd Russam has returned to England, having completed his second Assyrian expedition. He brings him a rich collection of objects which have been acquired during the year. The results of the last journey are of a more varied character than those of any expedition which has taken place since the early, explorations conducted by Sir A. H. Layard. Commencing operations on the mounds of Nineveh, Mr. Rassam succeeded in exploring a site which was regarded as forbidden ground. This was the mound of Nebby Yunis, the supposed tomb of the prophet Jonah. In this mound he discovered remains of palaces erected by Esdarhaddon and Sennacherib. His labors on the mounds of Nineveh have resulted in the recovery of a large number of inscriptions, many of extreme interest. Passing southward he visited Nimroud, where he continued his labors in the Temple Venus. This building, which he discovered in his former expedition, was now thoroughly examined, and found to be a large, open temple, containing shrines of several deities. There were also found a number of seats arranged in parallel rows, forming a center aisle from the chief altar. The plan now recovered seems to favor the ideas of its having been a species of forum where religious and other councils were held. The explorations in Assyria have discovered many valuable monuments. Mr. Rassam extended his operations into field untouched since the time of Sir. A. H. Layard's expedition, and he was able to carry out a series of explorations on the mounds of ancient Babylon. Here his discoveries have been most brilliant. In a mound hitherto untouched he discovered a palace of Nebuchadnezzar's, with rich enameled columns, beams of Indian wood, and every indication of having been a most splendid edifice. His excavations in the mound of the Birs Nimroud, the site of the supposed Tower of Babel, has proved that the destruction of this great edifice was due, not to lightning or hostile attack, but to a volcanic eruption, which had torn and shattered the edifice.

A Request.

Upon the special request of Mr. W. C. Stronach, who is annoyed by people passing by his house to the swiming pond, I will close the pond from Sunday morning 9 o'clock until Monday morning, and request my patrons not to come into the neighborhood, but either go to church or take their Sunday evening walk somewhere else.

BREVARD, July 17.—Good seasons for the past two days. Field crops very promising. Uplands have suffered from the protracted dry spell, but no serious damage is done.

A party of Swiss emigrants are in the county prospecting for land; express themselves as well pleased. Land is fertile, cheap, and plentiful and emigrants who come to work are welcome.

Work on the French Broad progresses rapidly under the supervision of Captain J. W. Averell, and its navigation will soon be an accomplished fact.

Messrs. Battle, Strange, Manning and Springs, the Chapel Hill tramps, arrived here on the 14th instant; left their baggage and went to the top of Pisgah, returned to-day. They left for Cashier's Valley this evening. Their gentlemanly deportment, their anxiety for useful information and their economical mode of travel is indeed worthy of imitation. We hope to see a full report of their "tramp" in print at an early day.

[NOTE.—The drought seems to extend throughout the State, and the probabilities of rain are now so remote that much apprehension is felt in some sections for the corn and tobacco crops.

The NEWS reports show very little sickness. The "cold wave," "old Probs" says will last only a few days, and will be succeeded by an August freshet.]

PITT COUNTY MATTERS.

A Batch of Items Scooped in by a "News" Gatherer.

GREENVILLE, July 18.—The drouth and the weather are staple topics yet. The intense heat abates very little.

The drouth continues. The "oldest inhabitant" say it is "the longest dry spell in forty years." The result is short crops. Cotton about one-half; corn not so much—almost an entire failure of the corn crop.

THE POLITICAL POT.

It bubbles. Democrats pretty well divided between Tilden and Thurman. Republicans are almost unanimous for Grant.

IN MEMORIAM.

Bessie, Corinne, Mildred and Pauline Oaksmith,

Newbernian.

Who were drowned in Beaufort harbor on the 4th day of July, 1879. The quotations are from "My Life," and "Sic Itur Ad Astra," the last poems written by Bessie and Corinne:

Once again has cruel Ocean,
Torn from Carolina's crown,
Buds of genius bright with promise,
And remorseless cast them down.

First in wrath he snatched our Dimock,
Crushing her in fierce embrace.
Then seduced our Oaksmith sisters,
With a treach'rous smiling face.

Brave Corinne and gentle Bessie,
Each to save a sister tries,
"Oh the vain endeavors wasted,"
Oh the "fruitless sacrifice!"

Mildred nine, Pauline but seven,
Holding to the gratings clung,
*"Heads erect and arms kept quiet,"
Over oars the sisters hung.

Then, like cruel tigers snarling,
Dashed the wave upon each face,
Forced the young ones, but the elder
Fearless leaped to their embrace.

Giving life to save their darlings.
Willing there to sink and die,
Earning thus "amid earth's weeping"
Truest "immortality."

Ah, how oft on life's broad ocean,
Waves of poverty and grief,
Noble lives submerge in silence,
Vainly struggling for relief.

Oars of strength and health resigning,
Quietly that they may save,
Not themselves, but others dearer,
Thus they "sink 'neath Lethe's wave."

With "the crosses she had carried"
"Unto all the world unknown,"
With the "hops of sorrow buried,"
To the stars Corinne has flown.

Not "a simple place," sweet Bessie,
In "the surging of Life's throng,"
But "a note" that swells most grandly
"In the chord of nature's song;"

Is that "Life" you gave so nobly,
And the murmur of the sea
Echoes evermore the requiem
Nature sighing sings for thee.

MARY BAYARD CLARKE.

*Corinne's last words.

——Fred. Bryan, of New Berne, son of the well known lawyer, Henry R. Bryan, Esq., who has been visiting Raleigh for the past two weeks, the guest of Captain Street, of the National Hotel, returned home yesterday. The young gentleman made himself at home while in the city, and leaves behind him plenty of new-made friends. His friends tried to prevail on him to extend his stay, but the attractions of the muddy Neuse or some other unknown cause (perhaps of a far greater degree of beauty) were too strong to be resisted.

HUSSEY & JORDAN, PROPRIETORS

JOHN B. HUSSEY, - - Editor.

SUNDAY, - - - JULY 20, 1879.

REPUBLICAN POLITICS.

Sherman has publicly avowed his Presidential aspirations. He is seeking diligently the nomination and is employing all the means known to unscrupulous politicians to accomplish it.

Whatever difference of opinion may exist as to his ultimate success he is, and will continue to be, a formidable candidate. Be it remembered that the United States Treasury with its immense patronage is behind him. He is acknowledged to be the favorite of the Administration.

What are his qualifications?

He is neither a hero nor a patriot in any eminent sense of these terms. He is is cold and calculating, without social qualities, and unless greatly belied by Democrats and Republicans, he is sordid to the last degree. He entered the House of Representatives about twenty-four or five years ago, poor; held the position for several terms, and was at length elevated to the Senate. The salaries paid him were ample for an American country gentleman, and an honest man might be excused, and even applauded, if he had saved from them, while in Congress a sum of money, which properly invested, would now represent a respectable competence for life. But Sherman, without having been niggard in his habits, has done better than this, and if not a millionaire, as some say he is still a man of fortune, with blocks of houses for rent in Washington, besides a fine residence in the fashionable West End; and it may presumed, like Justice Shallow, with "land and beeves" in his native State of Ohio. These are heavy weights for a Presidential candidate to say nothing of his most disreputable complication in Louisiana matters.

But Sherman holds the purse strings of the National Treasury, and notwithstanding he disclaims the use of patronage for his personal advantage, the simple fact of the announcement of his candidature has made a profound impression on the Federal office-holders. Not many, if any, dare to take open ground against him; while with most of the class, he is recognized as the "coming man." The fate of the unoffending collector of the Second District of this State, Powers, stares them fully in the face, and warns them to be circumspect. The logic of that event is intensified by the fact, that of all the Revenue Collectors in the State, Powers was the only one against whom grave charges of malfeasance of one kind or another have not been made. Mr. Sherman's disclaimer of responsibility, in the face of this fact, is not sufficient to steady the nerves of men who eat their bread, and disport themselves at fashionable watering places on Federal salaries. Republican politicians who have ceased to hold office, or have failed to secure office, are with rare exceptions, the avowed and noisy champions, of Grant. This is the universal feeling among the carpet-baggers. They are aware that their hold on the popular mind—even on the negro mind, has been broken, and no better evidence of the general contempt into which they have fallen could be desired than the fact that the Republican Administration at Washington has discharged the best and almost the last of them from public service without assigning a reason for the summary procedure; but to their credit it must be owned that the carpet-baggers have accepted the gage of battle promptly. Powers refused to resign at the request of the President, conveyed by the innocent Sherman, with apologies, while Powers' friend Keogh of the Greensboro North State, Chairman of the State Republican executive Committee, anticipated the impending blow by a manifest in favor of Grant, and declaration of war to the knife on Sherman. We are told by the organ of the party that Sherman will not be nominated because he cannot carry New York; and that he cannot carry New York because he unwarrantably, and with bad faith, removed Arthur and Cornell, the Navy Agent and Collector. These, according to the New North State, are affronts never to be forgiven by the Republicans of New York. Moreover, the ambitious Secretary is charged with having neglected or snubbed the Southern Republicans—which is very true as it regards the natives, but we had inclined to the opinion that the carpet-baggers had hitherto been particularly favored, and especially Mr. Keogh, who until very recently has been the almost exclusively recognized representatives of the party at Washington.

But the most singular not to say ludicrous objection made to Sherman by this Grant organ is the grave apprehension which is expressed of danger to public liberty from placing the brother of the General of the Army in the Presidential office. And this from a champion of Grant who, we are told by the organ, will preserve the peace by force if necessary! While the present incumbent remains in the White House, and while Sherman remains at the head of the Treasury, Keogh's influence must cease.

Doubtless Grant has a greater following in North Carolina than any one, or perhaps than all other Presidential aspirants put together. Still, it by no means follows that he will receive the undivided vote of the State in the nominating convention. Northern Republicans are not calculating on Southern electoral votes, and they will not cheerfully permit themselves to be handicapped in the Presidential race by a heavy or unskillful rider, out of deference to men who will be mere spectators in the contest, and for whom they have no particular respect. Grant's strength is with the negroes who regard him as their deliverer from bondage, and the Northern demagogues of the party adhere to him because they expect him to restore them to the possession and control of the spoils. With Boss Shepherd as Secretary of the Treasury, Robeson back in the Navy, Delano in the Interior and Belknap in the War Department, they look forward with fond hopes to the good time to come.

There are many ignorant, well-meaning people who wish to see Grant made President again, though it be in disregard of time-powered custom; but the genuine Grant man is an Imperialist. He is fascinated with the notion that with Grant once more in the White House, he would remain there, and that he would restore the regime of corruption, and establish a perpetuity of the civil service, based on fidelity to the chief. This is what Grantism means, and what some indiscreet advocates of the cause not unfrequently admit, or proclaim.

"OUR DUTY TO OUR STATE."

Such was Judge Cox's patriotic theme at the University Normal School last week. Our correspondent has furnished us with a very meager and doubtless very imperfect outline of the address.

Our appreciation of the subject is indicated by the prominence we give it in our editorial columns. Limited as our space is we yield it ungrudgingly to the discussion of a topic so dear to the hearts of all true North Carolinians. We thank Judge Cox, and our readers will thank him, for his manly words.

He said:

"Among other causes that retard our progress is the want of some well defined State policy, and a proper State pride. The disproportion between the length and breadth of our State produces that diversity of views which often degenerates into sectionalism. It is most difficult to inaugurate or sustain a well defined State policy, for measures originating in and tending to benefit one section are viewed with jealousy and distrust and often defeated by the others. Upon the principle I suppose that "mountains interposed make enemies of nations." The results as you might naturally anticipate are simply lamentable. See how little of her history is preserved in pride. The works of Jones, Wheeler, Hawks, the Last Ninety Days of the War, and others, possess great merit and interest as they are, but the limited space allotted to them, is insufficient to embrace many incidents and events interesting to us as North Carolinians and which are treasured only in the fading memory of her people.

How different is other portions of the Union! but view the States that surround us and mark the contrast. Go to Nashville, Tennessee, the daughter of our State, and visit her magnificent State library. On its walls you may see the portraits of her statesmen and her judges and distinguished officials of the past. In Columbia, South Carolina, you will see the same respect shown to her illustrious dead, and in Richmond, Virginia, you will not only find one of the most magnificent equestrian statues of Washington that exist, but gathered around its pedestal her great statesmen, orators and jurists, and adorning her beautiful capitol grounds, busts and statues of Clay and Jackson, the gifts of private citizens, and the statue of Stonewall Jackson bestowed by Englishmen, the unveiling of which was inaugurated with a grand civic parade and an oration which drew together not only the intelligence and chivalry of the State, but likewise many distinguished visitors from her sister States.

And so precious in the eyes of her sons is the fame of her public men that it appears to savor of impiety even to criticise them.

And now go with me to our Capitol and what do you behold? Her library virtually in a garret, no statue or portrait of a native son, and a bust of one of the greatest statesmen of this country, the gift of one of her generous sons, without niche or pedestal, dust covered and sometimes used as a match scraper. What incentive is there for others, equally generous, who might desire to link their names with her illustrious dead to make similar donations? You inquire in vain for portraits or even respectable engravings of her Senators, her Governors, her distinguished Supreme Court Bench, and the graves of some of her most illustrious dead who occupied foremost places in her history have not even a rude slab to mark where they sleep, and but for the filial affection which has preserved some of their portraits and engravings in these halls no memorial of them would be preserved.

And thus, my friends, as Antony pointed to the bloody wounds of Cæsar to arouse his countrymen to avenge his death, so I point to your neglect of your highest and most sacred duties to arouse you to a more active and earnest zeal in the cause of your State.

It is not true that she is deficient in the production of the highest order of mind or other essentials of success, for not only were two Presidents born on her soil and a third educated at her University, but a wealth of intellect has lived and flourished among us which would have adorned as with the brightest jewels the coronet of any State, active in proclaiming and jealous in preserving their fame.

While I would be the last of her sons to expose her shame, did her neglect arise from her poverty, or misfortune, yet a comparison of her indebtedness and resources with those of her Southern sisters, discloses the fact that while her indebtedness as proposed to be adjusted is far less than theirs, her resources are yet undeveloped

THE STATE FAIR.

It is not too early to call attention to the approaching State Fair. Its relations to our agricultural progress and its importance in building up the material interests of the State are too well understood and appreciated by people who read newspapers to require any elaboration.

The News numbers among its patrons and friends many of the most enterprising and successful farmers in the State. It is to this class we would appeal to bestir themselves at once to a zealous co-operation with the officers and managers of the State Fair Association. Their influence properly exerted in their respective neighborhoods will do infinitely more good than all the fine newspaper talk and theorizing.

The last thing the horny-handed son of toil wants is theory.

His penchant for sub soil facts and figures comes from delving and digging the earth, and is only equaled by his contempt for dress-parade agriculture.

Our farmers are not lacking in pride, but they do hate the gloss and frippery of official pomp that makes itself so disgustingly conspicuous on some State occasions.

There is some prejudice against the Fair in certain sections of the State. Whether well-grounded or not it is not our purpose to inquire. It exists.

It will continue to live in some shape as long as pride and rivalry contest for the mastery. It is not dishonorable. It may do injustice to the honorable arbitrators selected by the Association.

But all these things aside. Mutual concessions are honorable. Let us go to work with a true North Carolina spirit and make the Nineteenth Annual State Fair a grand agricultural achievement. We beg the farmers to lay aside their prejudices for the nonce and make one patriotic effort to redeem our State agriculture. Learn and love to be North Carolinians.

Fire proof paper! Verily, what strange things are happening these days. Dr. C. L. Hunter, antiquarian and local historian, has shown the editor of the Southern Home, a piece of paper made from asbestos. The incredulous editor tested its fire proof claims, and here is what he says about it:

We applied a match to the paper and it blazed and was blackened and charred, but did not turn to ashes like rag paper would do. The asbestos is a mineral of similar composition to the soap stone and is used extensively in making iron, mixing paint, etc., and there are great quantities of it within a radius of 30 miles around this city. The paper exhibited to us was made in New York. It was somewhat heavier than common writing paper and was nearly white in color.

The Concord Register indorses what the Goldsboro Mail said last week about Judge Cox, and adds: "No truer man ever lived; no more earnest Democrat ever adorned the ranks of our great Democratic organization; none ever did duty more thoroughly in any position assigned him, in any capacity, or at any time than William R. Cox. It will be a shame if the Democratic party fails to reward him for his fidelity to the trusts that he has borne in the past, and whose only emolument, thus far, has been honor.

Speaking of the American colored citizen, the Lamar (Iowa) Sentinel says:

"When the Stalwarts get into power in 1880 he must either be disfranchised or compelled to vote right

"The negro is a fraud."

The Sentinel is a "stalwart', Republican paper. Will the colored people heed this threat. The scheme to disfranchise them was first developed by Senator Blaine, who indorsed it very strongly last year, and since then the movement has gained strength until it has become a Republican purpose, which will be carried out if that wicked party retains power after 1880.

About a week ago an Iowa man died. He was very wealthy and left three sons, his only heirs, and the ungrateful boys got together and ran away with all the property before the lawyers could get at it and divided it with each other? There is so much sordid, mean, grasping selfishness in this world that sometimes it is enough to discourage a good lawyer.

Another Democratic outrage in Mississippi. A few days ago the Democrats of Yazoo county nominated a negro as one of their three candidates for the Legislature; now the regular convention in Washington county has pledged the party vote to any candidate whom the colored brethren will nominate.

People in the White Mountains are putting on airs just now over their snowdrifts. They tell about one in Tuckerman's Ravine which is still seventy-five feet deep and a thousand feet long, and there are any number of smaller ones.

John Sherman is a mighty shrewd politician, but it will be the finest game in politics he ever played if he succeeds in carrying Maine for the Republicans, and at the same time kills off Blaine. That is what he has gone there to do. But he will find Blaine a bigger man than Powers.

When Sherman says that though he is a candidate for the Presidential nomination he does not and will not use the official machinery in his grasp to aid himself, does anybody, even a marine, believe him?

The dismissal of six West Point cadets for hazing is a meritorious act. The brutal custom of perpetrating cruel abuse on fresh arrivals at that institution has been carried to such an extent that severe measure are justifiable.

Idle looms and spindles in England, while the products of our own busy factories are being sold to the English people, is a strange phase of the present situation.

The State press is enthusiastically unanimous in commending Dr. Pritchard's election to the presidency of Wake Forest College as the best possible selection that could have been made.

Secretary Denson serves notice on the farmers through the News this morning that the Nineteenth Annual State Fair takes place in Raleigh, October 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th.

We know the Democrat's old fashioned editor would never leave the printing office for a seat in Congress, however much it might gratify the Charlotte Observer.

North Carolina needs more Cox's. What he said to the Normal school ought to be repeated in every nook and corner in the State.

A Louisiana lunatic writes to Governor Jarvis to "please have the Sunday trains in North Carolina stopped at once."

The "True National Basis."

Dr. Deems is eminently a practical preacher and an exceptionally sensible man in the pulpit. The preacher who feels the "conscience of duty discharged" in merely expounding doctrinal and theological questions is behind this progressive age and operates in a field that seriously impairs his usefulness. It is the agressive preacher that touches the popular heart. Agressiveness in the pulpit is not incompatible with orthodox preaching. The Herald does credit to its sagacity and shows a sense of true appreciation in publishing Dr. Deems' sermons and lectures. We quote from his last Sunday's sermon, discussing the "True National Basis." Said the learned divine:

A people must be permeated by Bible ideas. To make any stir in the world it must be happy and satisfied; and the only durable satisfaction is that of a fixed principle. Better be one thing always, no matter what, than athiest to-day and deist to-morrow. That was the Poet Lamartine's complaint of France—that they had no solid basis of faith. There is no calculating the national effects of devotion to God and cultivation of spiritual interests. The tendency of the age is toward the material. In a nation like ours one long-headed, shrewd man may build a colossal fortune, and one such fortune has a disastrous effect upon the community. "Let us, too," say they, "let us build our Tower of Babel." Yet, there is no more money in the country because it is accumulated or dammed up in one place. God dams up the springs of wealth that the millrace of human progress may afterward flow. No people is great by reason of its material wealth. The riches that build a nation up are spiritual. That is why the pulpit does for men. That is why men meet in church Sunday after Sunday, why they go on singing the hymns they learned in childhood. And that is how the mind is turned from the temporal to the eternal, from the fretting of life to everlasting rest.

THE BOON OF JOY.

Joy is the first boon that Christianity adds to a national life. All nations are born in the midst of thanksgiving. Every time that France is regenerated there are new burst of acclaim. Think of the joy felt by men of the Revolution, imagine the thrill that passed through the land when the articles of peace were signed. Nations should be merry and so should churches. If we so manage our church as to make it stupid and spiritless let us at once shut it up. Christians often have to walk in a spiritual slavery; they won't go to theatres, they don't enjoy their church services. "Something wrong," you say, and so there is. If every Christian would go through life remembering that in a thousand years from to-day he might be a soldier in the battalions of God he would know himself to be the happiest of men.

HOW THE WORLD GROWS RICH.

Material growth is the corollary of spiritual growth. Rome had command of the world—then why did she perish? Because the sinews of her arms were paralyzed and her wealth fell away. Look at our strikes, our war, and think what riches perished there. If each of these strikers had known the spiritual peace and joy he would have turned back to his labor and would have been patient. England owes more to John Wesley than to all her Prime Ministers. Wesley taught the miners of Cornwall to descend the shaft with songs of thanksgiving on their lips.

Americans, on the other hand, are perhaps the most vicious reformers in the world. "Radical" should be the name of a man who digs down, not of one who digs up. Instead of haranguing the people about their rights and wrongs harangue them by leading a life of holiness. Supplant the evil by planting the good. If a man is angry don't curse him; if a child is abrupt don't turn on it sharply. What we want more both in politics and pulpit is less preaching of error and more preaching of truth. Let every man and woman be a tree of God, ripening and bearing good fruit.

Nations are monumental. You walk through the ruins and say, "Here was Babylon, here Assyria, here Greece." Each of them stands upon the plain of time a monument to God, who draws in hieroglyphics a special lesson upon each. The time may come when our Republic shall have passed away and whoso comes after us shall read our epitaph, for good or for evil, written by the finger of God.

Annabel Lee.

It was many and many a year ago,
In a kingdom by the sea,
That a maiden lived whom you may know
By the name of Annabel Lee—
And this maiden she lived with no other thought
Than to love and be loved by me.

I was a child and she was a child
In this kingdom by the sea;
But we loved with a love that was more than love,
I and my Annabel Lee,
With all that the winged seraphs of heaven
Coveted her and me.

And this was the reason that, years ago
In this kingdom by the sea,
A wind blew out of a cloud, chilling
My beautiful Annabel Lee
So that her highborn kinsman came
And bore her away from me,
To shut her up in a supulchre
In this kingdom by the sea.

The angels not half so happy in heaven
Went envying her and me—
Yes!—that was the reason (as all men know,
In this kingdom by the sea,)
That the wind came out of a cloud by night,
Chilling and killing my Annabel Lee.

But our love it was stronger by far than the love
Of those who were older than we—
Of many far wiser than we—
And neither the angels in heaven above,
Nor the demons down under the sea;
Can ever dissever my love from the soul
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee

For the moon never beams without bringing me dreams
Of the beautiful Annabel Lee,
And so all the night time, I lie down by the side
Of my darling—my darling—my life and my bride
In the sepulchre there by the sea,
In her tomb by the sounding sea.

THE LAST OF TEMPLE BAR.

Three Centuries of Historical Lore Shoveled and Carted Away!

New York World.

On the night of the 13th of June, 1879, the last vestige of Temple Bar was taken away by the contractors, and by this time the southern footway which joins the Strand and Fleet street has doubtless been perfectly cleared of obstruction and (the boarding round Child's Bank, the rebuilding of which is nearly completed, having also been removed) there is on both sides of the great thoroughfare an unobstructed footpath. The south pier and arch were allowed to remain standing till the bank had been taken down, then the pick was laid to the foundations of the gate which had been doomed since in August, 1874, an architect while walking cityward "perceived that the keystone of the arch had dropped and that the whole structure had sidled out of the perpendicular. Messrs. Child & Company, who rented the rooms over the gateway from the city at £20 a year, then began to move their old books, the final removal being made on the last bank holiday, April 15, the firm shifting its quarters one door to the east of the site which it has occupied since the days Nell Gwynne had her account with the house then long established in the goldsmith's trade. The bank was in the reign of James I. an inn, and a disorderly one, for on St. Thomas' Day, 1619, its keeper, Richard Crompton, was presented at the wardmote for disturbing the slumber of a peaceful neighbor, John Clarke. "Ye Marygold," hard by the Temple gate, and over against the Cock Tavern, to which Tennyson's Will Waterproof did much resort, had an ancient neighbor in a tavern called the Sugarloaf and Green Lettuce; the sign of the Marigold was preserved in the bank, where it stood over the door of the inner offices, and the old kitchen was in use up till a very late day. The bank was much older than the bar. When the liberty of the city was bounded westward by posts and rails and a chain, the Marigold's neighbor was the Devil Tavern, in whose great room "The Apollo," Ben Jonson, "lorded it with greater authority than Dryden did afterwards at Will's or Addison at Button's." The rules of the Club, described in the Tatler, are still preserved in the banking-house, inscribed in gold letters upon board. Subsequently the posts and chains were replaced by a wooden house stretching across the road, with a narrow gateway in the middle. This structure was pulled down just after the great fire, which, as Pepys records, stopped just short of it, and there Sir Christopher Wren set up his paroum opus, which stood to our time. About this time Messrs. Blanchard & Child built the new front to their house. The records of their firm's dealings with Oliver Cromwell are lost, but those survive of the transactions with such clients as William and Mary, and earlier still, "pretty Nelly." ("He spake to the Duke of York," says Evelyn in describing Charles' death "to be kind to the Dutchesse of Cleaveland, and especially Portsmouth, and that Nelly might not starve"), who died indebted to her bankers in the sum of £808, payment of which was guaranteed by the Earls of Rochester and Pembroke, Lord Sydney, and Sir Robert Sawyer. Hogarth has immortalized the episode of the "run" in 1689, when Sarah Lady Churchhill, afterwards the Duchess of Marlborough, stowed all the gold she had or could collect from her friends in her coach and brought it to the Marigold to help the partners and restore confidence.

In the next century it was that John, tenth Earl of Westmoreland, while chatting pleasantly with Robert Child at dinner, asked the old banker what he would do were he in love with the daughter of a rich man who persisted in being blind to his would-be son-in-law's merits. "Why, run away with her, of course," said the banker, with whose daughter, Miss Sarah Anne Child, Lord Westmoreland proceeded to elope that night, a lucky pistol shot bringing down one of the angry father's leaders when the pursuers got uncomfortably close and allowing the lovers to reach Gretna Green in safety. Before this time Temple Bar had come into vogue as an airing place for the heads of traitors and criminals. Evelyn writes under date of April 10, 1696. "The quarters of Sir William Perkins and Sir John Friend, lately executed on the Plot, with Perkins' head, were set up at Temple Bar; a dismal sight which many pitied. I think there never was such a Temple Bar till now, except in the time of K. Cha. II., viz., of Sir Theo. Armstrong," who was concerned in the Rye House Plot and executed in 1684. Before "the forty-five," the head of a Jacobite barrister named Layer, executed soon after Atterbury's Plot, stood on Temple Bar for thirty years, till it was blown down one stormy night, found by a Mr. Pearce, and by him taken to a neighboring public house to be buried in the cellar, though Dr. Rawlinson bought a skull he believed to be Layer's, and had it buried with him in 1755, holding it in his right hand. After 1745, however, Temple Bar earned most conspicuously its title of the City Golgotha, when the heads of Francis Townley and George Fletcher, two English gentlemen who had joined the Pretender at Manchester and been executed with many other prisoners on Kennington Common, were set up on poles on Temple Bar, where they stood till 1772, when they fell in a storm. It was when passing under the Jacobite heads at Temple Bar that Goldsmith slyly repeated to Johnson, who leaned toward Jacobinism, the line from Ovid which Johnson had just recited in the Poet's Corner:

Forsitan et nostrum nomen miscebitur istis.

The Devil Tavern was pulled down in 1787 to make room for the row of houses called Child's place, which stood upon the famous cellars of Ben Johnson's host, Simon Wadlow, the original of "Old Sir Simon, the King." When a few months ago the excavations were made in this locality, very extensive "finds" were made of tobacco pipes, chopines or earthen flagons of the "gray beard" pattern, and drinking vessels of an age even anterior to that of Elizabeth, and—most remarkable of all the curiosities—a bottle of wine. It was "Dutch-looking in shape, speroidal and flattened at the sides, like the smaller Schiedam flagons, which are yet in use in Holland;" its originally dark-colored glass had become iridescent, doubtless through the action of fire; but so carefully sealed had it been that not more than an inch of the pale ruby-colored wine it contained had evaporated. It is not easy to assign a date to this relic. The bottle is very much like the flask on the table in Ward's familiar picture of Johnson reading the manuscript of "The Vicar of Wakefield," both in shape and hue, and the wine was probably mountain, the equivalent of our port. According to the bills of Mrs. Dorothy Biggins, who kept the Sugarloaf Tavern in 1719, mountain was the wine most called for in the time of George I., when it was in the first blush of its popularity, being forced into universal adoption by the embargo laid on French clarets the War of the Succession. A queer touch of irony it is that Wren's structure, dating back to the Great Fire of 1666, should vanish, while a frail flask of wine that probably is not much its junior survives.

Invention of the Telescope.

Concerning the invention of the telescope, Descartes, in 1637, wrote as follows: "This invention, as illustrious as it is useful, is, to the shame of our science, due to chance and more experiment. About thirty years ago there lived in Alkmaer, in Holland, a certain Jacob Metius, who had never studied, though both his father and his brother were professors of mathematics. He found his greatest pleasure in making burning-glasses and mirrors; and when he was thus once in possession of a lot of glasses of different forms he happened to look at the same time through two glasses, of which the one was a little thicker in the middle than on the edge, and the other thinner in the middle. He afterward fixed them in a tube, and in that way originated a telescope, from which all the later ones have been made, for as far as I know nobody as yet has sufficiently explained what form these glasses by right ought to have. On the 17th of October, 1608, this Jacob Metius (otherwise Adriaanz) applied to the States-General of the Netherlands for a reward as the inventor of the instrument two years previously. But one of his own countrymen had anticipated him in this application, for Jan Lapprey (otherwise Hans Lippersheim) had some days before presented to the States a similar instrument. Thus, then, the first authentic publication on record of this great invention was made when Lapprey delivered his telescope to the States-General.

It is good to dwell in amity, though it is amity hard thing to do with some people.

Extract from S. J. Pearce's "Alhambra and Kremlin."

"In Russia justice is administered under laws the issue of the sovereign will, and liable to be repealed at his pleasure. Trial by jury is of recent introduction and may be considered an experiment. In the court-room I inquired of an intelligent gentleman how it was working? He said quite well; and there related the following incident to show how the royal will comes in, even to the smallest affairs of private citizens. An officer under the government promised to give a certain place of profit to a man, who was soon surprised to find it given to another. Such mishaps are not unusual in milder governments I believe. But the disappointed office-seeker sought the man who had promised it to him, and slapped his face in open court, charging him with breach of faith. He was arraigned and tried by jury for the assault and battery, and the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, or more accurately, "Served him right." The verdict was received with great applause. The Emperor gave the office-seeker and office-holder also, the striker and the struck, appointments in distant parts of the empire, where neither of them wanted to go or stay, and thus punished both: one for breaking his word, and the other for breaking the peace. There is a vein of humor in such administration of justice."

It is scarcely creditable, but nevertheless true, that on the morning of the day on which he is to appear in a new piece, M. Lafontaine goes to offer up a prayer that he may be successful. Some year ago, when he belonged to the Comedie Francaise, a friend met him and his accomplished wife coming out of the edifice. "The Francaise," said the actor explanatorily, "revives 'Tartuffe' this evening." "What!" exclaimed the friend, "ask God to aid you in playing a part which the clergy hold to be inimical to religion!" "Gently," replied M Lafontaine; "we prayed that we might be protected, this evening, but we did not say that it was for 'Tartuffe.'"—The Theater.

On High street yesterday a boy of ten, richly dressed, sat on the steps eating an orange, and a boy with a cart load of picked up wood stood across the street looking at him. The contrast was very great, and a pedestrian who saw the situation said to the poor boy: "That chap over there is pretty well fixed, isn't he?" "Yes," was the brief reply. "Lives in a big house and wears good clothes?" "Yes." There was a minute of silence, and then the boy with the cart started up his load, saying: "But I don't care a cent about it—he has to eat with a fork and say, 'yes ma'am, to everybody.'"—Detroit Free Press.

A Fable for Fools.

A donkey, somewhat overfed and under bred, finding himself by chance in a crowded street and wishing to stretch himself, began, most unexpectedly to the hurrying throng of pedestrians, to kick out violently. On being remonstrated with by several whom he had injured, he responded, "Why don't you look out for yourself? you can't expect me to have eyes in the back of my head!" Hæw fabular docet that the nature of a donkey is not to be amended by argument. The moral of this story lies in its application—by persons thrusting canes and umbrellas under their arms.—Bos. Trans.

Bleeding to Death from a Tooth-Drawing.

New Orleans Times.

Through Dr. M. Schuppert, of this city, information of the peculiar circumstances by which the death of Mr. Gundersheimer was brought about have been obtained. The surgeon of the steamer upon which Mr. Gundersheimer breathed his last was Dr. Frederick Ebenau, who was present and administered to the afflicted gentleman. He writes that Mr. G. died on the 12th of June from a cause little expected.

During the first days at sea the patient was very well, did not become seasick, developed a fine appetite and seemed full of spirits. On the fourth, however, a hemorrhage, perios and anum, appeared, caused, the surgeon thinks, by the use of liquors, which, for months, had been the only means of keeping the patient up. He considered the hemorrhage an indication of a general thinning out of the blood. It required five whole days of diligent doctoring by means of rest in bed, strict diet, ice and iron water, Karlsbad saltz, etc., before the blood flow could be stopped. Accordingly, the tenth was the first good day that he had.

The liver was strong and the spleen only a little enlarged. The following night Mr. G. experienced the toothache, and at seven o'clock next morning he had the barber extract the last tooth in the upper jaw. This was done without the knowledge of the surgeon. Immediately a hemorrhage again set in, which it was impossible to stop. Every attempt was made, with wadding, tinder, cork, alum, all without effect. Blood began to flow from various other portions of the body, so that toward evening the patient was almost senseless. At half-past twelve o'clock that night he died.

The surgeon writes further that he was so exhausted by the sixteen hours' watch that he was unable to examine post mortem and discover the cause of this sudden hemorrhage, and consequently appeals to Dr. Schuppert for information. The surgeon concludes with an allusion to another and similar case of hemorrhage after the loss of a teeth, the case in point being the late owner of the Park Hotel in Brooklyn. Dr. Schuppert is of the opinion that the blood of the deceased had grown so thin that it permeated the walls of the blood vessels, and could not be restrained. Bleeding to death was the consequence. The case will doubtless receive much attention.

Homesick.

Oh! for a day on the dear old plantation,
Just as the fair south-land home used to be,
Oh! for a swing on the gate of the garden,
Under the boughs of the June apple tree.

Oh! for a rest in the shade of the straw-stack,
Hearing the hum of the threshing machine;
Oh! for a drink from the spring in the meadow,
Under the sweet gum tree, fragrant and green.

Oh! for a cantaloupe juicy and mellow,
Fresh from the melon patch down by the spring;
Oh! for a night on the trundle-bed pillow,
Sleeping calm sleep that each night used to bring.

Oh! for a sight of the well beloved faces,
Now widely scattered, and some, alas! dead,
Oh! for one day in the dear old home places,
Bright with the light of the days that are fled.

I Could not Help It.

My feet are dancing to the song,
My happy heart is singing,
The sand seems strewed with diamond gems,
And sweetest birds are singing.
The lark is trilling in the sky,
And the dove coos in the grove,
My very soul seems melting down
In streams of lava, love.
Last night he whispered in my ear
Such words of love and madness,
My heart to-day is carried up
To heights of glorious gladness,
And oh! I cannot help it.

I've seen ten thousand burning eyes.
But his are brightest of them all,
His tones make sweeter music far
Than those celestial harps let fall.
My heart is singing in response,
My blush the tale is telling—
With wild, delirious ecstacy
My very soul is swelling.
Last night I heard the first mad words
Of love, that glowing, passion thing;
My senses reel—my heart will burst,
My feet will dance, my lips will sing,
Because I cannot help it.

And, Oh! such words of love he spoke—
The first I'd ever heard;
They charmed me as the charmer does
The tranced, fluttering bird.
The Paphian goddess never felt
A love so rich and warm
As thrilled my soul and swept my heart
At love's tempestuous storm.
The stars were out and all aglow—
(Scenes of bliss about me swim)
My head was snuggled on his breast—
And he kissed me—and I kissed him,
Because I could not help it.

The Advice.

BY ANDREW EADIE.

Are ye daein' ocht weel? Are ye thriving, my man,
Be thankfu' to fortune for a' that she sends ye,
Ye'll hae plenty o' frien's aye to offer their haun',
When ye needna their kindness a' body kens ye,
But wait ye a wee, when the tide taks a turn,
And aff wi' the ebb slips the favors she lend's ye,
Caul friendship will then led ye lanely to mourn,
When ye need a' their kindness, nae body kens ye.

For the chiel that has stuck like a burr to your side,
And swore wi' his heart's dearest bluid to befriend ye,
A five guinea note man, will part ye as wide
As if oceans and deserts were lying between ye,
Then that plausible chiel wants ye aye to confide,
By bragging ata' times how he would defend ye,
But if fortune prove fause, he's awa' wi' the tide,
And he's sure to regret that ever he ken'd ye.

But thinkna my frien', that a' mankind are sae,
There are some noble hearts in the world to cheer ye
Aye, those worth the name Gude send they were mae,
Wha the caulder the blast, the closer draws near ye.
N'oo be honest and just in your dealings wi' men,
And ye'll be respected for meikle 'twill bring ye,
There is naething on earth that's sae pleasant to ken,
As your conscience when clear, it never can sting ye.

Yet there's something, my frien', that gives life a great zest;
'Tis a bonnie young wife that winna deceive ye,
An' a frien' ye can trust is a' next to the best,
For if ye get them ye'll hae little to grieve ye;
Aye keep frae thae chiels wi' their new fangled creeds,
Hae naething to sae to them, John, I beseech ye,
For the're ploughing the grun' for which they're nae seed
And that's about a' that the scientists teach ye.

In youth a' the pleasures of this life look sae bricht,
But ye maunna forget, dark clouds may be near ye;
Hae your actions sae clear they can a' bear the licht,
For ye kenna' hoo soon that sorrow may sear ye;
The nearest and dearest, tho' as pure as the snaw,
When least 'tis expected brings trouble before ye,
But what'eer may betide, or what'eer may befall
Remember aye this there's an e'e watching o'er ye.

Noo I've given my advice hoo I think ye should act,
An' it's done for your guid and no' for to freeze ye,
For whatever I've said ye can wager a plock,
I wadna hae said, if I thocht 'twould displease ye;
I hae watch'd ye grow up sin' ye was a bit child
And oft laugh'd at your pranks, for naething alarm'd ye,
Ye we sae like myself, I mean just a wee wild,
That he's nae frien' o' mine wha ere tries to harm

But ye ask me for Maggie to be your guid wife;
I'll gie my consent, for I ken she does lo'e ye,
And I wish ye much joy in the battle o' life,
An' soon may wee totums come toddlin' to ye,
There's baith siller an' lan, an' a cosy wee cot,
Ye'll get wi' the lass, for her tocker I'll gie ye,
Noo jist gang an' tell Meg what her father says o't,
She wunna say nae, she'll be sae glad to see ye.

Repairing Promptly and Carefully Done.

Talbott's Patent Spark Arrester.

THE INVENTION OF THE AGE.

Talbott's new Patent Spark Arrester is really the only perfect and reliable one, and is superseding all others in use. The great efficiency of this Arrester is attracting universal attention, and is being endorsed by the best mechanical engineers and insurance companies. Its prominent features are:

It does not destroy the draft.

It does not interfere with cleaning the tubes.

It will not choke up, and requires no cleaning.

It requires no direct dampers to be opened when raising steam (dampers being objectionable, as they may be left open and allow sparks to escape.)

It requires no water to extinguish sparks, which, by condensation, destroys the draft. Besides, when water is used, if neglected, the efficiency is destroyed by evaporation of the water, and the boiler is kept in a filthy condition.

It is simple and durable, and can be relied upon.

It can be attached to any boiler.

No planter should be without one of them. Insurance companies will insure gins and barns where the Talbott Engines and Spark Arresters are used at same rate as charged for water or horse-power.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

——There will be no service at the Church of the Good Shepherd to-night.

——Colonel Richardson, coroner, examined a dead infant yesterday, found on the premises of Mrs. Clifton, near the North Carolina Railroad. The result of the inquest is not known at this writing.

——A load of coffins for the city poor stood in front of the Mayor's office yesterday morning. It would appear as if the signs of the times were encouraging; certainly this looks like caring for the poor.

——Rev. N. B. Wharton, of Atlanta, Ga., will preach at Salisbury street Baptist church to-day. This distinguished divine reached the city yesterday and is the guest of Dr. Pritchard.

——Attention is called to the advertisement of the Raleigh Male Academy which appears in this issue of the NEWS. The principals of this school, Messrs. Fray & Morson, have a State wide reputation as instructors, and it may safely be assured that prior encomiums will be equally well deserved in the future.

——Winston is classed as a delightful place, and one well suited for the location of an academy. The advertisement of the Winston Male Academy appears in another column, with the name of J. A. Monroe, as principal. This gentleman is rated as a most thorough educator.

School Books Again.

Yes, it is a fact that teachers can learn something to their advantage in purchasing School Books, by corresponding with Alfred Williams & Company, Raleigh. No matter what books are to be used they can be furnished by this this firm promptly and at lowest prices. They always carry a full stock of everything needed in the school room or in the Sunday school.

Mayor's Court.

The long-expected heart-thrilling and soul harrowing case wherein Alice Christian charged her husband, Henry Christian, with forsaking her, leaving her to eke out an existence in this heartless world as best she might, and taking up with a wench of questionable reputation named Eliza Hamilton or Freeman, was brought to a temporary end yesterday morning. Alice swore, Henry swore, Eliza swore, and half a dozen witnesses who knew nothing about the case swore. The upshot was that the Mayor bound over Henry and Eliza to appear at the August term of court in order that their cases might be left to the tender mercies of a jury.

Robert Thrower is a colored man who chooses to vote the Democratic ticket. But his Republican friends, or enemies, choose that such shall not be the case, if they can help it. So they tackled him. Consequence, Marshall Williams and two others fell into officer Mullins' hands. Another Democratic outrage. The case will be tried Monday.

BOVINE, MISSISSIPPI, April 22, 1879. —The following correspondence will explain itself: A. WADDILL, ESQ., LYNCHBURG, VA.—Dear Sir: Observing a certificate from you in reference to the "Iron and Alum Mass," of the Seven Springs, in Washington county, Va., in relation to its efficacy for Liver Diseases, would you have the kindness to inform me whether you used the "Mass" or the "Water;" also, a description of the symptoms and such other information as you may deem pertinent. I am a long-time sufferer with Liver Complaint, and naturally feel very anxious on the subject of a remedy that will afford me even temporary relief. Your early reply will greatly oblige, very respectfully,

WILLIAM BARR.

LYNCHBURG, Va., May 12, 1879.—WM. BARR, Esq., Bovine, Mississippi—Dear Sir: Your inquiry in regard to the "Liver case" which was effectually cured in my family from using the "Seven Springs Mass," is before me. The case referred to in my certificate was that of my wife's sister, who is now in her 80th year, and has been a member of my family for the last 27 years. She had been afflicted with Liver Disease for 30 years, sometimes almost dying with pains in the back, breast, and heaviness of the chest, heart-burns (intensely), sick stomach, vomiting, &c. I procured a few bottles of the "Mass" for her, and very soon after she began the use of it, her health commenced to get better, and she continued steadily to improve, and at this writing, so old, seemingly in as good health as a person who had never been afflicted with these diseases. She attributes her cure entirely to the efficacy of the "Seven Springs Mass." I regard it one of the greatest family medicines we have access to, not only for such diseases as above indicated, but for various other complaints for which it is recommended. Hoping these answers satisfactory, I am, very truly, A. WADDILL, Proprietor Lynchburg News.

Healthfulness.

A distinguished physician says: "After a careful examination of Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, I am satisfied that it is a wholesome preparation. I have introduced it among my patients, and have yet to learn where a convalescent patient could not indulge in warm biscuits made with it, and feel the better for it.

Good Results of Life Insurance.

Another practical illustration of the value of Life Insurance is found to exist in the fact that the Ætna Life Insurance Company through their General Agent, W. H. Crow, has just paid $2,000 for a policy on the life of Colonel Joel Laflin, deceased, and also has in hand $5,000 to pay Mrs. Englehard for a policy upon the life of her late husband, J. A. Englehard, Esq., Secretary of State at the time of his death. Major W. H. Crow will be pleased to see or hear from any parties desiring to make a safe and judicious investment in this old and truly worthy institution which has been managed by him in North Carolina and Virginia for fourteen years.

Patronized by the Ladies.

Dr. Price's Special Flavoring Extracts are used by the most intelligent ladies in this country. A few cents additional cost does not deter ladies who are mindful of the health of their family from procuring that which is known to be pure and wholesome. 2t

Highly Esteemed.

Dr. Price's Unique Perfumes, Pet Rose, Evening Violet and other odors, are rich and highly esteemed perfumes. They are used by the most polished and refined persons for their powerful, durable and exquisite fragrance. No toilet is complete without them.

False Impression.

It is generally supposed by physicians and the people generally that Dyspepsia cannot invariable be cured, but we are pleased to say that Green's August Flower has never, to our knowledge, failed to cure Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint in all its forms, such as Sour Stomach, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, bad taste in the mouth, &c. Out of the 50,000 dozen bottles sold last year, not a single failure was reported, but thousands of complimentary letters received from Druggists of wonderful cures. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it. Sample battles 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents.

Cuticura

REMEDIES

Infallibly Cure all Skin and Scalp Diseases, Scaly Eruptions, Itchings, and Irritations.

The testimonials of permanent cures of Skin and Scalp Diseases which have been the torture of a lifetime by the Cuticura Remedies, are more wonderful than any methods or remedies known to the medical profession.

Cuticura Resolvent, a powerful Blood Purifier, is the only purifying agent which finds its way into the circulating fluid and thence through the oil and sweat glands to the surface of the skin, thus destroying the poisonous elements with which these vessels have been daily charged.

Cuticura, The Great Skin Cure, applied externally, arrests all unnatural or morbid growth which cover the surface of the diseased glands and tubes with Scaly, Itching, and Irritating Humors, speedily it removes them, leaving the pores open, healthy, and free from diseased particles of matter.

Thus internally and externally do these great remedies act in conjunction, performing cures that have astonished the most noted physicians of the day.

Salt Rheum for 30 Years

On the Head, Face, and Greater Par of the Body, Cured.

Messrs. WEEKS & POTTER: Gentlemen—I have been a great sufferer with Salt Rheum for 30 years, commencing in my head and face and extending over the greater part of my body. I have taken gallons of medicines for the blood of different kinds and tried good physicians, all of which did me no good, and I came to the conclusion that I could not be cured. But a friend called my attention to an article in the Union on skin diseases, and I got a box of Cuticura. The first application was a great relief and the third took the scales all off, and I felt like a new man. I have used three 50-cent boxes and my skin is smooth and I consider myself entirely cured. Hoping that this may be seen by some one afflicted as I have been (if there is any) is my earnest wish. And I cheerfully recommend it to all persons afflicted with like diseases. Yours truly,

B. WILSON LORD.

AGAWAM, MASS., Sept. 9, 1878.

The Cuticura Soap should be used for cleansing all diseased surfaces, as most soaps are injurious to the skin.

LEPROSY.

A Modern Miracle. Astonishing Results from the use of Cuticura.

Messrs. WEEKS & POTTER: Gentlemen.—We have a case of Leprosy in our poorhouse which is being cured by your Cuticura remedies The county had employed all of our doctors and had sent to New York for advice, but to no avail.

The patient commenced using the Cuticura and immediately began getting better.

He had been confined to his bed for two and one half years. Had not had his clothes on during this time. Last week he dressed for the first time.

When he walked, there would at least one quart of scales come off of him.

This happened every day.

We think it is a wonderful cure.

We do not think he is cured, but he is in a fair way to be cured to say the least.

Yours truly,

DUNNING BROTHERS, Druggists and Booksellers.

ALLEGAN, MICH., Feb. 11, 1879.

NOTE.—Messrs. Dunning Brothers are thoroughly reliable gentlemen, and were unknown to us prior to the receipt of this letter. We firmly believe this Cuticura will permanently cure this very severe case of Leprosy, as it has done many others.

Prepared by Weeks & Potter, Chemists and Druggists, 360 Washington Street, Boston, Mass., and for sale by all Druggists and Dealers. Price of Cuticura, small boxes, 50 cents; large boxes containing two and one half times the quantity of small, $1. Resolvent, $1 per bottle. Cuticura Soap, 25 cents per cake; by mail, 30 cents; 3 cakes, 75 cents.

COLLINS' VOLTAIC ELECTRIC PLASTERS Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Weak and Sore Lungs, Coughs and Colds, Weak Back, Stomach and Bowels, Dyspepsia, Shooting Pains through the Loins and Back, Spasms or Fits, and Nervous Muscular, and Spinal Affections, relieved and cured when every other plaster, liniment, lotion, and electrical appliance fails.
